

ON THE COMMENTARY TO THE BODHIPATHAPRADĪPA OF ROL PA’I RDO RJE

KAIE MOCHIZUKI

*Introduction*¹

The Bodhipathapradīpa (=BPP) is a small text written by Dīpamkaraśrīñāna (or Atiśa). He was requested by a Tibetan king to teach Indian Buddhism and wrote it. Because he had a great influence on Tibetan scholars like Tsong kha pa blo bzang grags pa (1357-1419), it is obviously one of the important texts in Tibet. From the web site of the Tibetan Buddhist Resource Center², we can get information on the seventeen commentaries to it. I have been researching into them and discussing its result of my research in papers³, that is to say, on the commentaries by Dīpamkaraśrīñāna himself, Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan (1570-1662), Co ne Grags pa bshad sgrub (1675-1748), Blo bzang dpal ldan bstan ’dzin snyan grags (1849-1904), and Thub bstan chos kyi nyi ma (1883-1937).

This paper also discussed one of the results of my research and I refer to the commentary of lCang skyā Rol pa’i rdo rje (1717-1786), the *Byang chub lam sgron ma’i sa bcad mdor bsduṣ*⁴. And I have attached its romanized texts with synopses by other masters as appendices.

On lCang skyā Rol pa’i rdo rje and his works

The second lCang skyā, Rol pa’i rdo rje, who was recognized as the reincarnation of the lCang skyā ngag dbang blo bzang chos ldan (1642-1714) by dKon mchog ’jigs med dbang po, was born at Lang gru’i sde bzhi’i nub padmo’i sde pa ’brog gnas brag dkar. E. Gene Smith⁵ summarizes his biography written by Thu’u bkwan Blo bzang chos kyi nyi ma⁶ (1737-1802). I will enumerate some important topics in his life:

¹ This paper is based on my handout given out at 2008 Korea Conference of Buddhist Studies, May 17, 2008 at Dongguk University in Seoul. Though I had prepared a Japanese version of this paper with a Japanese translation of Rol pa’i rdo rje’s commentary to the Bodhipathapradīpa, it is missed in the conference volume in which it has to be published. It can be read now in Web (<http://skb.or.kr/2008/pds/skb041101.pdf>).

- 1717 Birth on the tenth day of the first Mongol month.
- 1724 Chinese emperor ordered that he be conducted to China as a “guest.”
- 1734 He was ordered to accompany the seventh Dalai Lama back to Tibet.
- 1735 The final monastic vows at bKra shis lhun po.
- 1736 He set out for China reigned by his friend, Ch'ien lung and was asked to take the seat of the highest lamaist position (tham ka bla ma) in China.
- 1741 Beginning of compilation of the Dag yig mkhas pa'i 'byung gnas and the translation of the bstan 'gyur into Mongolian.
- 1744 Establishment of dGa' ldan byin chags gling in Peking with the emperor.
- 1745 Bestowal of the tantric initiation to the emperor.
- 1746 Beginning to write the Grub mtha' rnam par bzhag pa gsal bar bshad pa thub bstan lhun po'i mdzes rgyan.
- 1772 Supervision of the translation of bka' 'gyur into Manchu.
- 1777 He performed the funeral rites for the mother of the emperor.
- 1785 Seclusion at Wu t'ai shan and death there next year.

He was not only one of the great teachers of Gelug pa, but also well acquainted with Mongolian and Manchu as he translated the bstan 'gyur into Mongolian and also the bka' 'gyur into Machu⁷.

Regarding his works 206 texts are listed by Lokesh Chandra in his *Materials for a History of Tibetan Literature*⁸. Among them I refer some texts that are related to the Bodhipathapradīpa. The text which I consider in this paper is the sixth:

3814: Byang chub lam sgron ma'i sa bcad mdor bs dus.

The fifth is a commentary to the Bhadracārīprajñidhāna:

3813: 'Phags pa bzang spyod smon lam gyi rnam bshad kun bzang dgongs pa gsal bar byed pa'i rgyan.

Dīpamkaraśrīñāna cites the Bhadracārīprajñidhāna at the first section of the Bodhipatha-

⁷ Yamaguchi 2007: 120-122. On the tradition of his pre-existence, see Everding 1985.

pradīpapañjikā in order to explain a way of offering (pūja)⁹. Therefore the commentary to the Bodhipathapradīpa seems to come next to it. But no mahāyāna works, but many tantric works, follow them. We can see only six mahāyāna or mādhyamika works in his collected works:

- 3915: dBu ma'i lta ba nyams su len tshul de kho na nyid snang bar byed pa'i sgron me.
3929: Byang chub sems dpa'i bslab bya bs dus pa gzhan phan bdud rtsi'od 'phreng.
3930: rGyal ba'i bstan la ji ltar slob pa'i rim pa mdo tsam brjod pa gzhan phan bdud rtsi'i snying po.
3931: bSlab bya gsal ba'i sgron me.
3933: bSlab bya bdud rtsi yang zhun.
3990: Byang chub lam gyi rim pa'i dmigs rnams yid la bya tshul shin tu bs dus pa gnod don gsal ba.

Because I have not researched them in detail, I cannot refer to their contents here. From their titles, no.3915 seems to be a text on the Mādhyamika view, nos.3929-3933 seem to be texts on the disciplines which are familiar with the Śiksāsamuccaya of Śāntideva and no.3990 seems to be a text on the stages of the path to the enlightenment which is familiar with not only the Bodhipathapradīpa of Dipaṅkaraśrījnāna but also the Lam rim chen mo of Tsong kha pa. It can be said that all of these texts are secondly related to the Bodhipathapradīpa because their main subjects are the same as those of the Bodhipathapradīpa. But I think that it does not seem to have a great influence on his philosophical view because he seems to be more interested in tantric works than in those of mahāyāna.

He is famous as a writer of the texts on the philosophical systems (grub mtha') of Buddhism:

- 3977: Rang dang gzhan gyi grub pa'i mtha' rgya mtsho lta bu'i rnam bzhag gsal bar bshad pa thub bstan lhun po'i mdzes rgyan legs bshad kyi gter chen po las sems tsam pa'i grub mtha' yan chad.
3978: dBu ma rang rgyud pa'i mtha' yan chad.
3979: Grub mtha'i rnam bzhag thub bstan lhun po'i mdzes rgyan gyi smad cha.
3980: Grub mtha' rnam bzhag thub bstan lhun po'i mdzes rgyan rgya nag spar ma'i yig skyon sogz gyi dogs sel zhu lan du gnang ba.

⁹ Mochizuki 1988.

Many studies on these texts¹⁰ have been published and it is reported that they are closely related to the texts of philosophical tenets by Sum pa mkhan po ye shes dpal 'byor (1704-1788), dKong mchog 'jigs med dbang po (1728-1791) and Thu'u bkwan blo bzang chos kyi nyi ma (1737-1802)¹¹. Though I do not know how Rol pa'i rdo rje evaluate the author of the Bodhipathapradīpa in these texts. Though it needs more detailed research, Dipamkaraśrijñāna does not seem to be treated as one of mādhyamika masters in them¹².

On the Byang chub lam gyi sgron ma'i sa bcad mdor bsdus

As this text is named in its title ‘synopsis (sa bcad)’, it is a small text only in five leaves (1-5b1) to classify the contents of the Bodhipathapradīpa with their synopsis. Therefore we can see his original words only in headings and the colophon. On a style of writing the author relates headings at first and cites, though their numbers are not fixed, the first four syllables and the last three syllables of root verses with the word “from (nas)”. Therefore there is no explanation of passages of the root verse, so we cannot call this text a commentary to the Bodhipathapradīpa. But we can know how he understands its structure or contents from this synopsis.

I will pick up here some passages to be noted. In the beginning of the text there is a passage of homage to Dipamkaraśrijñāna and his descendants:

Homage to those who have the tradition of the glory great master Atisha and his sons¹³.

I cannot judge whether this is attributed to the author of this text, Rol pa'i rdo rje, or its compiler, but the author of the Bodhipathapradīpa is called “Aisha” in honorific title, not Dipamkaraśrijñāna. And “those who have the tradition of the glory great master Atisha and his sons” could mean scholars not only of Kadam pa but also of Gelug pa to which Rol pa'i rdo rje belongs. It is expressed in this passage that the author or the compiler follows the teaching of these traditions.

We can see his words in two sections of this commentary. The first comes in the commentary to BPP 73-74:

¹¹ See Kawasaki 2007: 14-17. We must refer to also the Grub mtha' chen mo (Grub mtha' rnam bshad rang gzhan grub mtha' kun dang zab don mchog tu gsal ba kun bzang zhing gi nyi ma lung rigs rgya mthso skye dgu'i re ba kun skong) by 'Jam dbyang bzhad pa ngag dbang brtson grus (1648-1722). See Hopkins 1983, 2003, esp. 2003: xxxiv-xxxvi.

¹² According to Cozort 1998: 35, note 10, Dipamkaraśrijñāna is classified into Prāsaṅgika by Blo bzang dkon mchog in his Grub mtha' rtsa ba'i tshig tik shel dkar me long. But he, though Dipamkarabhadra, is also classified into Svātantrika by 'Jam mgon Kong sprul blo gros mtha' yas in his Theg pa'i sgo kun las btus pa gsung rab rin po che'i mdzod bslab pa gsum legs par ston pa'i bstan bcos shes bya kun khyab. See Callahan 2007: 219.

¹³ Tib.: jo bo chen po dpal a ti sha yab sras brygud par bcas pa la phyag 'tshal lo //

The former is also related in [these] words¹⁴.

Though he classifies BPP 47-74 into five, the fourth and the fifth are united under the same heading:

The fourth on not renouncing sentient beings with conceptual mind and the fifth on the discipline of reason to remember in another birth are from “this is birth” to “to protect completely¹⁵”.

Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan and also Co ne Grags pa bshad grub classify BPP 73 into the fourth and BPP 73-74 into fifth in their commentaries and BPP 73 is repeated. Therefore Rol pa'i rdo rje accepts the classification of previous commentaries and explains a reason for the combination of two headings with his words. Please compare it with their synopses in appendices.

The second comes in the commentary to BPP 87-90:

These two verses for each simile come out of order¹⁶.

This means that BPP 91-94 comes before BPP 87-90 and the order of the root verses are reversed in this commentary. This disorder appears also in the commentary by Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan and Co ne Grags pa bshad grub, so Rol pa'i rdo rje seems to follow their interpretation. These two comments are not explanation of the root verse, but indication of the structural irregularities of contents. He acknowledges that these irregularities appear also in the previous commentaries and he must explain why this disorder comes in his commentary.

The text ends its analysis with the last heading:

The meaning of conclusion as the third runs from “the Bodhipathapradīpa” to “edited and this teaching was composed at the Tho-ling temple of Zhang-zhung¹⁷”.

But this number of headings is a miscount. We cannot find “the meaning of conclusion” as the third topic in the text so I read it as “the fourth”.

In the colophon it is said:

Likewise, thinking that this Analytical topic outline of the Bodhipathapradīpa is useful for zealous students like the young student, Gu shrī Blo bzang nor bu, who has faith, effort and discernment, lCang skyā rol pa'i rdo rje writes [it]¹⁸.

Though it is not clear who wrote this colophon, it expresses the motivation to write this text and the author wrote it for his students. Therefore it is written as a handbook or guidebook of the Bodhipathapradīpa and he seems to have no positive motivation to explain or interpret passages of the root verse from his own point of view, so he indicates only this analytical topic of outline of the root verse. And the structural analysis is similar with that of Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan and it means that Rol pa'i rdo rje follows the traditional analysis of the Bodhipathapradīpa. Therefore we cannot get his original reading of the Bodhipathapradīpa from this text.

Conclusion

As the Tibetan text is just a list of headings, I can very little comment upon his interpretation to the Bodhipathapradīpa. My first impression is that he classifies the root verse on the basis of the commentary by Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan as Co ne Grags pa bshad sgrub also does in his commentary. Of course I must research previous commentaries to that of Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan and make clear on which text Blo bzang chos kyi rgyal mtshan depends. Synopsis is usually used to analyze the contents of a main text in Tibetan Buddhism. Though Rol pa'i rdo rje also uses this system of synopsis to understand contents of the main text as previous masters do, he does not give his own explanations. Because the Bodhipathapradīpa is a short text in 276 pāda (68 or 69 verses), it is not easy to make original different interpretations of commentators from other commentaries of previous masters. Because Rol pa'i rdo rje also has no intention to take an extreme interpretation of contents of the root verses, he would follow the traditional reading.
